POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The Ottawa Free Press rises to observe that "it is considered a little curious that not one of the newspapers supporting the government have attempted to defend or excuse the conduct of the Minister of Railways in connection with the Onderdonk job. Do they consider the case too rotten to be touched?" Our Ottawa contemporary surely must have heard of a publication in this city styled the Colonist. It has the hardihood to defend the Onderdonk job.

President Cleveland has been compelled to recall his letter, permitting the Southern flags captured during the American war to be returned to the South. The President has had sufficient courage to acknowledge that his action in the first instance was a mistake. His letter is considered to be the act of a manly man full of courage, willing and ready to acknowledge that he committed an error of judgment.

In the London Times of the 21st inst., appears a letter from the Marquis of Lorne in which he takes Earl Spencer severely to task for complaining of the mildness of the government's language regarding the Canadian tariff. He asks whether Earl Spencer is prepared to go to the length of vetoing any protective tariff voted by an Irish parliament in Dublin. His Irish friends would hardly thank him for denying to Ireland what they consider the first of her necessities, namely, the encouragement of her industries through some form of protection.

The Toronto Globe of the 24th announces that Mr. Laurier has consented to accept the unconditional election to the Liberal leadership, and also that it cannot share the hope that Mr. Blake will return to political life. The article concludes, "It may be taken for granted that the shrewd parliamentarians of the Liberal party know the abilities of him whom they have chosen, and all may safely reckon that the trial will not find Mr. Laurier wanting in any respect. He has most gallantly and unselfishly placed himself at the disposal of his friends. Every Liberal owes him gratitude and aid; and every Conservative owes him justice and fair play."

In discussing the subsidies voted by Parliament and the treatment extended to this province by the government, the Vancouver Herald, sage-like, observes that "there are too many after these appropriations and they are too frequently distributed according to political exigencies. If British Columbia members will take promises for appropriations they can have any amount of them, and if they limit their action to complaining they will be permitted to continue at it as long as they please. Something more effective than complaints will have to be brought to bear upon the government if appropriations for public works are to be got."

It is properly charged against the Ottawa Senators that as legislators they are neither ornamental nor useful. They are at times, however, inclined to be somewhat pugilistic. A day or two before the prorogation an encounter took place between ex-Premier Ross, who is said to be the choice for the Lieut.-Governorship, and Senator Bellrose. Both are Conservatives. It is said that the latter had been nagging Ross a good deal lately, denouncing his regime in Quebec, and the two met in the Senate smoking room, when Ross told Bellrose that he either had to change his tactics or take a licking. Bellross gave a defiant answer, and Ross proceeded forthwith to administer a certain amount of castigation, which Bellrose accepted with meek humility.

The death of King WILLIAM, the immediate predecessor of Our Gracious Queen, took place on the 20th June and was first announced in Canada in the Montreal Gazette on the 27th July. Now the death of a sovereign at 12 o'clock noon could be known here before 8 o'clock on the morning of the same day. In 1837, the country now known as Canada had 66 newspapers; 40 in the Province of Canada, 18 in Nova Scotia, and 8 in New Brunswick; now there are 700 newspapers, over seventy of which are daily. Then they were printed on imported paper; now there are in Canada paper mills valued at over seven million dollars. In 1837 the postal rates for letters were as follows: 1 mile to 50, 4d; 50 miles to 100, 7d or 8d; 150 to 300, 10d; 300 miles to 400, 1s; above 400 miles, 1s 4d. Now we can send a letter 4000 miles for 3 cents; 10 times the distance for one-tenth the cost. The time taken in going from Montreal to Toronto sixty years ago would now suffice to start a man from Liverpool, England, land him in Halifax, transport him to Victoria, B. C., and bring him within a day or two's steam of Japan. The aggregate trade, as marked by exports and imports, has increased from $42,700,000 to 185 million. The shipping entered and cleared has increased from one million to 7,700,000 tons. The railways from 14½ miles to 11,000 miles. The passengers carried, from 27,000 to 10 million. The freight carried, from 8,000 tons to nearly 16 million. And thus this Canada of ours goes on progressing and developing her resources.

CAN HOE OUR OWN ROW.

There are not many among those who are now discussing the question of commercial union with the United States that fully appreciate the difficulties that will have to be surmounted before such a trade alliance can be accomplished. But in the discussion that is now going on in eastern papers, the opponents of reciprocal trade with the United States are striving to alarm the people against the ruinous effects of American competition and the inability of Canadians to hold their own in a fair field with their neighbors. We believe with a contemporary that the protectionists have quite too low an opinion of Canada and Canadians. Our people are not inferior in industry, skill or enterprise to our cousins across the line, a fact that is fully demonstrated by the success of Canadians in the United States. In all the large cities of the northern states, especially in Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and other western towns, hundreds of thousands of Canadians occupy leading positions in almost every avenue of trade and commerce. The theory that unrestricted trade relations would be disastrous to our protected industries would appear to us to be disproved by a correspondent of the Globe, who asks the following pertinent questions:

"Is it true that W. M. Mooney & Co., (Canada Horse Nail Co.), of Montreal, have established a branch horse nail macnufactory at Ausable Chasm, N. Y.? Is it true that A. Watts & Co., soap manufacturers, Brantford, Ont., have established a branch manufactory at Buffalo, N. Y.? Is it true that E. & C. Gurney & Co., Toronto, Ont., have established a branch manfactory at Boston, Mass.? Is it true that the Waterous Engine Works Co., of Brantford, Ont., have established a branch factory at St. Paul, Minn.? Is it true that the Morse Soap Company, (John Taylor & Co., proprietors), of Toronto, Ont., have established a branch factory at Rochester, N. Y.? If it is true of these five manufacturing industries, fairly representing the manufacturing interest in Canada, and they are not afraid to meet the live Yankee and his superior machinery and the 60,000,000 of people they have to serve and supply, then all this clap-trap talk about the Yankees' genius and ability to "snuff out" the "simple-minded Canuck" is all moonshine."

These Canadian industries have all been established in opposition to the protected industries of the United States, and the very fact that these manufacturers have ventured there is proof that they believe they can hold their own against the Americans. Whatever other argument may be advanced against commercial union, the ability of Canadians to take care of themselves is neither a sound nor a patriotic one. All we want is a fair field and no favor, when we will be quite willing to "hoe our own row" with our American friends or anyone else.

CANADA'S PROGRESS IN FIFTY YEARS.

The following data relative to the progress Canada has made during the last fifty years will be read with interest. It is compiled from a statement of "Facts and Figures of Canada" published by Mr. GEORGE JOHNSON, a well known journalist and authority on statistics, and who visited Victoria last year in company with Sir JOHN MACDONALD:

1st.—As to population: We have now four times the population of 1837—an increase proportionately greater than that of the United States, which in 1837 had 15 8-10 millions of people, and should, at the Canadian rate of increase, have 63 millions instead of 59 millions. Fifty years ago Canada had few cities. Montreal was a monster of 50,000 inhabitants; Toronto had 10,870; Halifax, 14,000; St. John, 12,000; Charlottetown, 3,500, while Winnipeg had Fort Garry and a few dozen whites. Quebec's population was not taken separately from the surrounding country then. Nor in all Canada were there any other cities of sufficient importance to warrant their separation from the surrounding country. To-day the country is girdled about by numerous fine cities, etc. Montreal has 210,000 inhabitants; Toronto, 140,000.

2nd. As to area: The word "Canada" was 50 years ago applied to a comparatively small area. It meant then the chief part of the country drained by the river St. Lawrence and its tributaries, a basin, the Canadian portion of which is about 460,000 square miles. Since 1837 there has been added Hudson Bay Basin, of two million square miles; the Mackenzie river basin, with 550,000 square miles, and the St. John river and Atlantic slope, 50,000 square miles, and the Pacific slope, 342,000 square miles. The 460,000 square miles have expanded to 3,471,000 square miles, not including the area covered by the great lakes. In 1837 the St. Lawrence was the only great river. Now the Saskatchewan, the Peace, the Mackenzie rivers rival the St. Lawrence. Fifty years ago Canada had but a narrow strip of sea board from the mouth of the St. Lawrence to Baie des Chaleurs. Now the extent of the sea coast, which is lessened, buoyed and lighted, is 32,000 miles, and much of the coast of British Columbia, Vancouver Island and the whole littoral of Hudson's Bay have still to be brought under the control of the Department of Marine. As to the area under cultivation, there were in 1837 four millions and a half acres. Now there are about 30 millions. In 1837 Upper Canada had about 300,000 oxen, horses, cows and other cattle. In 1881 it had 2,300,000, and last year the value of farm stock is officially stated at $107,000,000.

3rd. As to value of property: MONTGOMERY MARTIN estimated the value of movable and unmovable property—land, cattle, houses, forests, etc.—of British North America in 1836 at $585,000,000. Now, the farm property—land, cattle, horses—of Ontario alone is officially stated to be nearly one thousand million dollars. The one city of Montreal had $225,000,000 of real estate within its limits in 1886.

4th. As to capital invested in public companies: In 1837 the amount was $4,694,000 invested in banks, steamboats, railways and all other companies. Now, railways alone absorb $630,000,000 of invested capital; banks $62,000,000, etc.

As to other matters of general interest: Banks in 1837 had deposits to the amount of $3,500,000. They now hold as deposits $110,000,000. The circulation of bank notes was in 1837 $1,750,000, and of Government notes $1,750,000, in all $3,500,000. Now, the circulation of bank notes is over $35,000,000, and of Government notes $15,000,000; in all $50,000,000. The population has increased fourfold. The business 13 times. On education the expenditure in 1837 was $270,000, and in 1885 nearly $10,000,000. In 1837 the number of pupils was 99,300; in 1885 it was 970,000—population increased four times; school attendance ten times.

Transport of freight, cost in 1837 from Montreal to Bytown, now the capital of the Dominion, from 25 shillings to 40 shillings per ton. Now, a ton of flour in barrels would cost $1. Mail accommodation: On July 11th, 1837, the Montreal Gazette announced, "We have Toronto papers of July 5th." Five days' reckless driving over terrible roads had brought Toronto in communication with Montreal. Postal facilities 50 years ago were meagre and expensive. In 1837 there were, in what is now the Dominion, 375 post offices, 5,370 miles of post road, and the stages and coaches on their annual journeys made 1,176,708 miles. Now, we have over 7,000 post offices and 52,000 miles of public rail route. The length of railway route is about twice the length of the post roads 50 years ago, and the annual mail route travel amounts to 24,000,000 miles.

ON A COWCATCHER.

LADY MACDONALD'S RIDE ON THE ROCKIES' "GREAT DIVIDE."

Novelty, Excitement and a View of Magnificent Scenery—How Several Well Regulated Young Men Were Astonished—A Thin, Melancholy American.

"It is an awful thing to do!" I hear a voice say, as the little group lean forward; and for a moment I feel a thrill that is very like fear; but it is gone at once, and I can think of nothing but the novelty, the excitement and the fun of this mad ride in glorious sunshine and intoxicating air, with magnificent mountains before and around me, their lofty peaks smiling down on us, and never a frown on their grand faces.

The pace quickens gradually, surely, swiftly, and then we are rushing up to the summit. We soon stand on the "Great Divide"—5,300 feet above sea level—between the two great oceans. As we pass, Mr. E—— by a gesture, points out a small river (called Bath creek, I think) which, issuing from a lake on the narrow summit level, winds near the track. I look, and lo! the water flowing eastward toward the Atlantic side, turns in a moment as the Divide is passed, and pours westward down the Pacific slope.

Many tunnels lie in our way as we rush by them, and during a halt I am told one of the tunnels is "wet." This being interpreted means that the arching rock is full of springs, which pour on the train as it passes. An umbrella and waterproof are therefore necessary for me—now sole occupant of the cowcatcher; and with praiseworthy economy I take off my hat, tuck it safely under my wraps and prepare to encounter the "wet" tunnel thus equipped. We plunge into a few moment's darkness—water splashing and dripping on every side; and as we emerge into the sunlight again and stop just beyond the tunnel, I see a party of young English sportsmen standing near the roadside. They have evidently just climbed the bank, guns in hand, leaving a large canoe with two Indian paddlers on the lake below. Fine, tall, young Saxons they are, in sporting attire somewhat the worse for long travel, but very conventional in style notwithstanding. Just imagine the feelings with which these well regulated young men beheld a lady, bareheaded and with an umbrella, seated in front of an engine at the mouth of a tunnel in the Gold Range of British Columbia! I am sorely afraid I laughed outright at the blank amazement of their rosy faces and longed to tell them what fun it was; but not being "introduced you know," I contented myself with acknowledging their presence by a solemn little bow—which was quite irresistible under the circumstances.

A MELANCHOLY AMERICAN.

A somewhat similar incident occurred next day during our journey in the valley of the Fraser river. The special stopped at a station where a mule train was just starting for some distant gold mines, laden with miners' supplies. It was very interesting to see the sturdy animals all packed and ready, standing in regular order, waiting for the word of command from their driver, which was instantly obeyed, all filing along at equal distances with the air of quadrupeds of superior intelligence, who had made up their minds to avoid hurry or confusion. It chanced to be one of our halts at tea time, and, as usual, my cup of tea and slice of bread and butter were brought to the buffer beam. I had just been presented with two large bouquets, which lay in my lap. While I leisurely sipped my tea, there suddenly appeared before me a very thin, tall, melancholy looking American, having something to do with the pack train now slowly winding off through the mountains. Never shall I forget the expression of that man's face as he steadily regarded me, seated composedly on the cowcatcher, surrounded with flowers, a plate of bread and butter on a candle box near by, taking afternoon tea. To remain silent was impossible.

"Good evening," I said.

The man nodded and drew a long breath.

"Have you come far?" he asked after a long pause.

"From the other side of the Rockies," I answered carelessly, as if speaking of a stroll round a village—"300 miles or so."

"Did you come that way down the Thompson?" he next asked, a little anxiously.

"O yes—and I am going to the sea."

"You ain't afraid, likely?" he continued, looking more melancholy than ever.

"Not at all."

"Now look here," he said, pausing between each word, "its real dangerous. I would not do this thing for a lot of money!" Then, thrusting his hands into his pockets, with a civil "Good evening, Missie," he disappeared round the engine.—Lady Macdonald in Murray's Magazine.

Students and the Sponge Bath.

If the student is in fair health and desires to remain so during the school course, would decidedly recommend him to take the sponge bath before retiring. If he is vigorous, cold is better than tepid water for this purpose. It will help to neutralize the effect of severe study on the brain, and induce healthful sleep. The scalp should be brushed well before retiring for the night, and the face and hands well washed with soap and water.—Herald of Health.

"DOMESTIC."

Its success is unprecedented and without a parallel. New machines come and go, but the 'Domestic' moves steadily forward, constantly attaining greater distiction and increased popularity because it is the best.

CHAPTER VII.

F COUNSEL FOR IT.

ROSCOMMON.

MEANWHILE ... comman had ... el. Then, in ... cia's name, ... backed by him, ... laid his case ... the land comm... sioner, filing the ... plication (wi... forced indors... ments) to Gover... Micheltorena, ... alleging that ... original grant was destroyed by fire. A... why?

It seemed there was a limit to Miss Ca... men's imitative talent. Admirable as it wa... it did not reach to the reproduction of the... official seal, which would have been a neces... sary appendage to the governor's grant. Bu... there were letters written on stamped pape... by Governor Micheltorena to himself, Gar... cia, and to Miguel, and to Miguel's father, all... of which were duly signed by the sign manual... and rubric of Mrs. Governor Micheltorena... Carmen de Haro. And then there was... "parol" evidence, and plenty of it; witnesses... who remembered everything about it—... namely, Manuel, Miguel and the all-recollect... ing Do Haro; here were details, poetical and... suggestive; and Dame Quickfish, as when... his late excellency, sitting not "by a sea-coal... fire," but with aguardiente and cigarros, had... sworn to him, the ex-ecclesiastical Miguel,... that he should grant, and had granted,... Garcia's request. There were clouds... of witnesses, conversations, letters and... records glib and pat to the oc... casion. In brief, there was nothing... wanted but the seal of its excellency. The only... copy of that was in the possession of a rival... school of renaissant art and the restoration of... antiques, then doing business before the land... commission.

And yet the claim was rejected! Having... lately recommended two separate claimants... to a patent for the same land the land com... mission became cautious and conservative.

Roscommon was at first astounded, then... indignant, and then warlike—he was for an... "appals to onst."

With the reader's previous knowledge of... Roscommon's disposition this may seem... somewhat inconsistent, but there are certain... natures to whom litigation has all the excite... ment of gambling, and it should be borne in... mind that this was his first lawsuit. So that... his lawyer, Mr. Saponaceous Wood, found... him in that belligerent mood to which coun... sel are obliged to hypocritically bring all the... sophistries of their profession. "Of course you... have your right to an appeal, but calm your... self, my dear sir, and consider. The case was... presented strongly, the evidence overwhelm... ing on our side, but we happened to be fighting... previous decisions of the land commission... that had brought them into trouble; so that... if Micheltorena had himself appeared in... court and testified to his giving you the... grant, it would have made no difference—no... Spanish grant had a show then, nor will it... have for the next six months. You see, my... dear sir, the government sent out one of its... big Washington lawyers to look into this... business, and he reported frands, sir, frands,... in a majority of the Spanish claims. And... why, sir! why? He was bought, sir, bought... —body and soul—by the ring!"

"And fwhot's the ring?" asked his client... sharply.

"The ring is—ahem! a combination of un... principled but wealthy persons to defeat the... ends of justice."

"And sure, fwhot's the ring to do wid me... grant as that thaving Mexican gave me at... the collatherals for the board he was owin... me! Eh, mind that now?"

"The ring, my dear sir, is the other side. It is—ahem! always the other side."

"And why the divel haven't we a ring, too! And ain't I payin' ye five hundred dollars—... and the divel of ring ye have, at all, at all!... Fwhot am I payin' ye fur, eh?"

"That a judicious expenditure of money," began Mr. Wood, "outside of actual disburse... ments, may not be of infinite service to you... I am not prepared to deny—but'—"

"Look ye, Mr. Sappy Wood, it's the 'appals' I want, and the grant I'll have, more betoken... as the old woman's harrut and me own is set... on it entirely. Get me the land and I'll give... ye the half of it—and it's a bargain!"

"But, my dear sir, there are some rules in... our profession—technical though they may... be—"

"The divel fly away wid yer profession. Sure is it better nor me own! If I've risked... me provisions and me whisky, that cost me... solid goold in Frisco, on that thafe Garcia's... claim, bedad the loikes of ye can risk yer... law."

"Well," said Wood, with an awkward... smile, "I suppose that a deed for one half, on... the consideration of friendship, my dear sir,... and a dollar in hand paid by me, might be... reconcilable."

"Now it's talkin' ye are. But whose the... felly we're foighten, that's got the ring?"

"All, my dear sir, it's the United States,"... said the lawyer with gravity.

"The divel! the government is it? And... is't that ye're afeared of? Sure it's the gov... ernment that I fought in me own counthree,... it was the government that druv me to Amer... ky, and is it now that I'm goin' back on me... principles?"

"Your political sentiments do you great... credit," began Mr. Wood.

"But fwhot's the government to do wid the... appals?"

"The government," said Mr. Wood signifi... cantly, "will be represented by the district... attorney."

"And who's the spalpeen?"

"It is rumored," said Mr. Wood slowly,... "that a new one is to be appointed. I, my... self, have had some ambition that way."

His client bent a pair of cunning but not... overwise gray eyes on his American lawyer.... But he only said, "Ye have, eh!"

"Yes," said Wood, answering the look boldly,... "and if I had the support of a number of your... prominent countrymen, who are so powerful... with all parties—men like you, my dear sir... —why, I think you might in time become a... conservative, at least more resigned to the... government."

Then the lesser and the greater scamp... looked at each other, and for a moment or... two felt a warm, sympathetic, friendly emo... tion for each other, and quietly shook hands.

Depend upon it there is a great deal more... kindly human sympathy between two openly... confessed scamps than there is in that calm,... respectable recognition that you and I, dear... reader, exhibit when we happen to oppose... each other with our respective virtues.

"And ye'll get the appals!"

"I will."

And he did! And by a singular coincidence... got the district attorneyship also. And... with a dent for one half of the "Red... Rock ranche" in his pocket and a lawsuit... lawyer in court to appear for his client, the... United States, as against himself, Roscom... mon, Garcia, et al. Wild horses could not... have torn him from this noble resolution.... There is an indescribable delicacy in the legal... profession which we literary folk ought to... imitate.

The United States lost! Which meant ruin... and destruction to the "Blue Mass Company"... who had bought from a paternal and benefi... cent government lands which didn't belong to... it. The Mexican grant, of course, ante-dated... the occupation of the mine by Concho, Wiles,... Pedro, et al., as well as by the "Blue Mass... Company," and the solitary partners, Biggs... and Thatcher. More than that, it swallowed... up their improvements. It made Biggs and... Thatcher responsible to Garcia for all the... money the grand master of avarice had made... out of it. Mr. District Attorney was ap... parently distressed, but resigned. Messrs.... Biggs and Thatcher were really distressed and... combative.

And then, to advance a few years in this... chronicle, began real litigation with earnest... ness, vigor, courage, zeal and belief on the... part of Biggs and Thatcher, and technicali... ties, delay, equivocation and a general... Fabian-like policy on the part of Garcia,... Roscommon, et al. Of all these tedious pro... cesses I note but one, which for originality... and audacity of conception appears to me to... indicate more clearly the temper and civiliza... tion of the epoch. A subordinate officer of... the district court refused to obey the man... ate ordering a transcript of the record to be... sent up to the United States supreme court.... It is to be regretted that the name of this... Sheridan youth, who thus fired the dome of... our constitutional liberties, should have... been otherwise so unimportant as to... be confined to the dusty records of... a doubtful court of which he was... a doubtful servitor, and that his claim... to immortality ceased with his double-feed... ence. But there still stands on record a... fact by this young gentleman, arraigning... the legal wisdom of the land, which is not eas... ily devoid of amusement or even instruc... tion to young men desirous of obtaining pub... lic and capital. Howbeit, the supreme... court was obliged to protect itself by procur... ing legislation of his functions out of its... clumsy fingers into the larger palm of its own... agency.

The various processes of law and equity,... which, when exercised practically in the af... fairs of ordinary business, might have occu... pied few months' time, dragged, clung, re... trograded, or advanced slowly during a... period of eight or nine years. But the strong... arm of Biggs and Thatcher held possession,... and subtly, by the same tactics employed... on either side, arrested or delayed eject... ment and so made and sold quicksilver, while... the opponents were spending gold, until... Diggorely hit in the interlacing of his ar... mor, fell in the lists, his cheek growing... waxen and his strong arm feeble, and finding... himself in this sore condition, and passing, as... it was made over his share in trust to his... counsel died. Whereat, from that time... henceforward, Royal Thatcher reigned in his... stead.

And having anticipated the legal record,... we wipe back to the various human in... terests it helped to make it up.

To begin with Roscommon: To do... justice to his later conduct and ex... pression it must be remembered that... when I accepted the claim for the... "Red Rock rancho," yet unquestioned, from... the hand of Garcia, he was careless, or at... least unsuspicious of fraud. It was not until... he had experienced the intoxication of litiga... tion that he felt, somehow, that he was a... wronged and defrauded man, but with the... obstinacy of defrauded men, preferred to ar... raign some fact or individual as the im... pelling cause of his wrong, rather than the... various circumstances that led to it. To this... simple man it was made patent that the... "Blue Mass Company" were making money... out of a mine which he claimed, and which... was not adjudged to them. Every dollar... they took out was a fresh count in this gen... eral indictment. Every delay towards this... adjustment of rights—although made by his... own lawyer—was a personal wrong. The... mere fact that there never was nor had been... any quid pro quo for this immense property—... that it had fallen to him for a mere song—... only addicted to his struggle. The possibility... of his losing this mere speculation affected... him more strongly than if he had already... paid down the million he expected to get from... the mine. I don't know that I have indicated... as plainly as I might that universal prefer... ence on the part of mankind to get something... from nothing, and to acquire the largest re... turn for the least possible expenditure, but I... question if right to say that Roscommon... was much more reprehensible than his fel... lows.

But it told upon him as it did upon... all over whom the spirit of the mur... dered Necho brooded—upon all whom... avarice alternately flattered and tortured.... From his quiet gains in his legitimate... business from the little capital accumu... lated through industry and economy, he lav... ished thousands on the chimera of his fancy.... He grew crazed and worn over his self-im... posed mission; he no longer acted with his... customs, regardless of quality or station or... importance; he had cliques to nullify, enemies... to place, friends to reward. The grocery... suffered through giving food and lodgment... to clouds of unimpeachable witnesses before the... land commission and the district court, "Mrs.... Ros," and herself losing money. Even the... bar failed; there was a party of "Blue Mass"... employes who drank at the opposite fonda,... and cursed the Roscommon claim over the... liquor. The calm, mechanical indifference... with which Roscommon had served his cus... tomers was gone. The townsman no longer... used after its perfunctory fashion; the... counter remained unwiped; the disks of... countless glasses marked its surface and in... dicated other preoccupation on the part of... the proprietor. The keen gray eyes of the... claimant of the "Red Rock Rancho" were al... ways on the lookout for friend or enemy.

Garcia comes next. That gentleman's... inborn talent for historic misrepresentation... culminated unpleasantly though a de... fective memory; a year or two after he... had sworn in his application for the "Rancho,"... being engaged in another case, any trifling... inconsistency was discovered in his state... ments, which had the effect of throwing the... weight of evidence to the party to had paid... him most, but was instantly detected by the... weaker party. Garcia's pre-eminence as a... witness as an expert and general historian be... gan to decline. He was obliged to be cor... roborated, and this required a feral outlay... of his fee. With the loss of his credibility as... a witness had habits supervened. He was... frequently drunk, he lost his position, he lost... his house, and Carmen, removed to San Fran... cisco, supported him with her hen.

And this brings us once more to that pretty... painter and innocent forger whose uncon... scious act bore such baleful fruits in the... barren hillsides of the "Red Rock Rancho," and... also to a later blossom of her life, just opened,... however, in kindlier sunshine.

Janitors' families are quite a feature of... Gotham's population. Living in sky-flats,... they are enabled to enjoy quiet lives and... a society of their own, which are largely... quite unknown to their more... neighbors. Nearly every... habitat by two of these facilities...

Real Estate.

Fourteen acres of land at Gordon Head were sold by auction to-day by Mr. Geo. Byrnes, to terminate the partnership of Ella & Robertson, for the sum of $1600.

Dominion Day Celebration.

Amongst the many attractions on Friday next will be a picnic and ball at Agricultural Hall. The pavillion has been decorated and a large ring constructed for games during the afternoon. Mr. Steward has secured the privilege to dispense refreshments, whilst the club members will furnish the restaurant, so as to supply proper edibles for the large gathering. The Artillery Band will play during the afternoon and evening. A long programme of games will commence at 2 p. m. During the afternoon members of the Athletic Club will give an exhibition and Mr. Weiler will perform on the slack wire. The price of admission is very low and we hope our young men of the V. A. C. will receive the patronage they deserve.

Lord and Lady Loudoun.

By the Sound steamer there arrived yesterday in this city Lord and Lady Loudoun. They are on a tour of the American continent, and are accompanied by F. Fitzherbert and G. Mostyn. Lord Loudoun is a jolly looking gentleman of about 35 years of age, and weighs in the neighborhood of 175 pounds. Lady Loudoun is a pronounced brunette of petite figure and pleasing features, and was attired in a dark close-fitting dress, so much affected by English ladies of the better class. Loudoun Castle and estate is in the southwest of Scotland, near Glasgow. The family have also large estates in England.

Strawberry Festival.

The annual strawberry festival was held in the school room of the First Presbyterian church last night, when there was a large company present and an enjoyable evening was passed. Songs were sung by Miss Robertson, Miss Fraser, little Miss Bussell, Mr. Kinnard, the choir, and others, and a recitation was given by Miss Jessie Stevens. Rev. Drs. Burns and Pollock delivered appropriate addresses, which were highly appreciated. The National Anthem and the benediction, pronounced by Rev. Dr. Burns, brought a very agreeable and successful entertainment to a close.

Black and Tan Cigars,

The Harris Murder.

The prisoner Alex. Crawford was arraigned before T. C. Atkinson, J. P., at New Westminster on Monday afternoon, charged with the murder of James Harris at Ladner's Landing in January last. He pleaded not guilty. Supt. Roycraft conducted the examination for the crown and Mr. Corbould appeared for the prisoner. Nothing new has been elicited in this case since the discovery of his blood-stained clothing, hid away in the attic of the house lately occupied by him. He will very likely be sent up for trial.

Tony Cigars,

The Willamettes.

The Willamette base ball nine who won the silver cup on the 22nd inst., had to pay $20 to Uncle Sam's customs authorities before they got the prize over. Concerning the two defeats at Seattle, they say they had to play against ten men, the nine players and the umpire. Said Tom Parrott: "We didn't have a kicker. That's what we needed. If Lou Coulter had been along, we would have won easy enough."

Gladstone Cigars.

Presentation.

Rev. Mr. Ladner, who has discharged the duties of pastor for the Gorge Road Church since coming to the province for the benefit of his health last fall, was last night presented with an address, signed by Mrs. Humber and Mrs. Welsh for the congregation, and a purse containing $187. The presentation was made at the church, and the address was read by Mr. Plummerfelt. The reverend gentleman made a happy reply.

Champion Scotch Fling Dancer.

At the Club Theatre last evening there was a good sized audience, who all went away well pleased. The feature of the entertainment was M'lle. Bertha in the most artistic songs and dances that have ever been seen in this city. Her Scotch Highland Fling cannot be surpassed in any country. *

Critically Critical.

The morning organ attempts to be "awfully" funny about what it terms "rubbish." Tell us, brother contemporary, something more about that "Egyptian Trophy" business. That was an effort to make bricks without even clay, leaving straw out of the question.

A pleasing incident transpired to-day during the closing exercises at St. Louis College, when Mr. R. F. McDonald, the genial and painstaking assistant teacher, was made the recipient of a valuable testimonial from the pupils. Mr McDonald is about returning to Prince Edward Island to engage in business, and as a slight token of the esteem in which he is held by those under his charge for the past three years, he was presented with a handsome gold-headed ebony cane, valued at $35, suitably inscribed, accompanied by the following address:

To Mr. R. F. McDonald:

We, the undersigned pupils of St. Louis College, beg to testify our love and appreciation for you our respected teacher by presenting you with this small token of our gratitude, which we hope you will accept and keep in remembrance of the donors.

We deeply regret your leaving us, for you have always been kind, faithful and just during the time we have been your pupils, and we sincerely extend to you and Mrs. McDonald our heartfelt wishes for your future health and happiness.

You carry away with you the life-long remembrance and love of all your pupils.

Signed on behalf of the pupils: G. H. Clarke, D. Sullivan, W. Johnson, P. Farrell, C. J. Bennes, L. Vigelius, A. Astrico, and A. Christensen.

Victoria, June 29th.

Mr. McDonald was completely taken by surprise, but replied in a happy manner, thanking the scholars for their kind address and valuable present and reciprocating the sentiments which they conveyed. The departure of Mr. McDonald from Victoria will be regretted by all who knew him, but by none more than by the principal and pupils of St. Louis College, who have had the best opportunity to know his work as a teacher and his integrity as a man.

Ah Sing, stealing chickens; remanded for one day.

Louis Redon, infraction of the city water works by-law; adjourned to Tuesday, 5th July.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain. *

Attractions at Fulton Market.

Residents of the city, as well as visitors, should not miss the opportunity of visiting Fulton Market, Johnson street, where are to be seen a collection of monkeys, trained; speaking parrots, mocking birds, English thrushes, blank birds and sterlings, magpies, and many other species of the singing and feathered tribe. Tourists in want of souvenirs can do no better than give this place a call. *

DIVISIONAL COURT.

[Before Hon. Messrs. McCreight & Walkem.]

Peter O'Reilly v. Ah Yuen—On 23rd May last, Mr. Justice Crease made an order restraining the defendant from trespassing and mining on certain land at Yale owned by the plaintiff. The defendant disobeyed the order, and on the 9th June by order of Mr. Justice Crease a writ of attachment was issued directed to the Sheriff of the city of New Westminster, commanding him to have the defendant before the Court at Victoria to answer his contempt. The defendant was arrested by the Sheriff at Yale and brought down to Victoria and lodged in gaol. On the 20th June Mr. S. Perry Mills moved for an order discharge defendant out of custody and to set aside the writ of attachment. Mr. Justice Crease refused to discharge the defendant and dismissed the application with cost, to be paid by the defendant. From this order the defendant appealed to this Court. Mr. Mills contended that the plaintiff should have moved to commit the defendant for contempt of court and not for a writ of attachment; that the Sheriff of New Westminster could bring the defendant to the bar of the court at Victoria, but could not lodge the defendant in the goal here; that the Sheriff should have lodged the defendant in the goal within his bailiwick, namely, at New Westminster, and therefore the defendant was not lawfully in custody.

Mr. Pooley, Q. C., appeared for the plaintiff. The Divisional Court made an order setting aside the writ of attachment and discharged the defendant out of custody, the defendant undertaking to obey the restraining order.

Electric Lights in Japan.

There has been visiting the city for a few days Mr. H. M. Williams, who has recently returned from the Asiatic empires, where he went to introduce the electric light, and he says that the readiness with which the Orientals adopt these improvements is quite astonishing. In Japan most of the principal cities are now lighted by electricity, as ours are, and many of the finest houses are illuminated in the same way. A large plant has recently been placed in the palace of the mikado at Tokio, a very large building, or rather a cluster of buildings connected by corridors and covering several acres. The Chinese do not take hold of these improvements as readily as the Japs, but are beginning to see their advantages. The Coreans are ready to adopt all modern ideas, particularly if they come from the United States. The palace of the king of Corea has a plant of 300 lights, and was first illuminated on the birthday of the king's mother-in-law, on the 20th of February, with great ceremony. The palace is at Seoul, and consists of a series of long, low, wooden buildings, with a thatched roof. As no foreigner is allowed to look upon the features of the king or queen, the workmen took great risks when they were putting in the apparatus, for if they had even by accident seen the face of the king they would have been put to death, according to the custom of the country. They were carried into the palace and through the corridors in palanquins, and trumpeters were sent ahead of them so that the royal family might keep out of their way.—Chicago Herald.

Getting Mad Over Trifles.

It takes so little to make a man mad Like a dog in a crowd, somebody treads inadvertently upon his toes and he yelps on general principles. He cannot locate the aggressor, so he includes the crowd, as teachers do when they keep a whole class in after school because Tommy Traddles whispered. A man will endure great physical pain, horrible mental anxiety, bankruptcy, desertion and the brush of death's battle ax, but will howl like a lunatic and swear like a trooper over an unruly collar button, or an innocent old hen he is trying to chase through an open barn door! A woman will trot around all day with a twenty pound pug dog in her arms, sit through a Bernhardt matinee with a high hat in front of her, walk ten miles on a shopping expedition and preserve her amiability, but will whip her child cruelly because it has spilled her cologne or lost her thimble. A man is proud of his muscle, and will stand up and be buffeted by a boxer and pummeled into a human poultice by an antagonist and call it sport, but if his baby boy runs against him and jogs his coffee cup, or a passer by on the street jostles him, he is mad enough to set Constantinople on fire. —Amber in Chicago Journal.

Plans for Siberian Convicts.

In a report prepared for the ministerial commission, which is now considering the project of gradually diverting the transportation of Russian convicts from Siberia to the island of Sagballen and certain districts in the Trans-Caucasian and Central Asia frontier provinces, the inspection of the Tiumen-Atchinsk route to Siberia states during the decade of 1876-86 218,578 prisoners passed along that highway. Of this number no less than 2,867 died on the way and 101,266 were sent from Atchinsk to the most remote eastern settlements. The report furnishes no record of the probably larger number who perished on the latter part of the journey. It is also silent as to the cause of the 2,867 deaths between Tiumen and Atchinsk. The fact cannot, however, be disguised that the horrible hardships and sufferings under which so large a number of these unfortunate exiles sink on the way are a standing blot on the penal legislation of Russia.—Cleveland Leader.
